

Alfprotocol – A step toward the third-generation DeFi, offering leverage for liquidity providers.

Powered by Solana SOLANA

At the core lies the protocol for leveraged liquidity provision into AMMs and yield farming. Complementary to that, Alfprotocol offers two protocols for unleveraged liquidity management: AlfMM (a decentralized exchange service) and Alf (an overcollateralized borrowing service). The core purpose of both protocols is to provide entry points for traders and risk-averse investors, offering them a platform to trade and provide liquidity, all the while reining in additional revenue from indirectly providing liquidity.

Alfprotocol Features

Leverage up to 200x yield farming and liquidity provision

Alf is a protocol for capital deployment on Solana for the purposes of liquidity provision and yield farming, both with and without margin of up to 200x.

Lightning-fast liquidations

Lightning-fast liquidations protecting the protocol liquidity providers. Solana, through its proof-of-history (PoH) protocol, is revolutionizing how blockchains work by processing up to 60,000 transactions per second,

Alf Equity Module

Some time after the launch, the protocol will switch from traditional "liquidity renting" module to the protocol owned liquidity by enabling Alf Equity Module and allow it to mint new tokens, but only for purchasing new liquidity as outlined (futures contracts and options contracts).
